THE INSTITUTE OF PACIFIC RELATIONS, ASIAN SCHOLARS AND AMERICAN POLITICS

John N. Thomas

When the Institute of Pacific Relations was formed in 1925, its goal was to improve American understanding of Asia through cross-cultural contact. The years of its existence were marked first by tremendous success and effectiveness and later by friction, controversy, and discreditation.

John Thomas has written the first extensive study of the IPR, focusing on the issues which led this supposedly "non-sectarian, non-controversial, and non-propagandistic" organization into open conflict with powerful political forces in America. Branded as a Communist tool, its leaders such as Owen Lattimore and Frederick Field labeled conscious agents who had lost China to the Communists, the IPR was dissolved in 1961.

This is a vital and stimulating book, particularly relevant in view of America's current reassessment of national policy toward China. 178 pp. $8.95

THE ASSOCIATION FOR ASIAN STUDIES

An Interpretive History

Charles O. Hucker

A highly personal interpretation of the history of the world's largest and most active learned society in the field. Hucker covers the growth of earlier associations, the formation in 1956 of the present Association, and successive changes in scope, organization, purpose, and activities. The Association for Asian Studies, Occasional Papers, Number 1.

85 pp. Paper only $1.95

"THE FACTORY SHIP" AND "THE ABSENTEE LANDLORD"

Takiji Kobayashi

Translated and with an introduction by

Frank Motofuji

These two short novels, representing the much neglected Japanese proletarian literature of the 1920s, center on the themes of oppression and political awakening, and celebrate the strength of united group action. Kobayashi, forced to live underground, and pursued and finally killed by the police, is now publicly honored each year in various parts of Japan.

185 pp. $6.95

IDEOLOGY AND POLITICS IN CONTEMPORARY CHINA

Edited with an Introduction by Chalmers Johnson

Ten distinguished experts reassess the interrelationship of Chinese Communist ideology and the Chinese Revolution. This new approach, considering ideology as a product of as well as a prescription for politics, will contribute to the study of political systems elsewhere in the world. Studies in Chinese Government and Politics IV. 390 pp. $15.00, paper $4.95
